CALLS SAVING LIVES HIS ROUTINE WORK

Flagman John Dalton Snatches Woman From Death, Then Dances Irish Horn Pipe.

Only through quick action and the utmost watchfulness, on the part of John Dalton, flagman at the High street crossing, was a woman saved from serious injury yesterday morning. About ten forty-five there are four trains on the tracks in front of the C. M. and St. P. railroad station. A woman was about to step from behind the Mineral Point train just as the Chicago train was pulling in. If Officer Dalton had not been on the job and seized her by the arm, she would have stepped directly in front of the incoming Chicago train.

Those who saw the escape were highly excited over its narrowness, but Officer Dalton said, "Oh that sort of thing happens every day. I am used to it. Some people do not seem to have any regard for their lives. They are awfully careless around here, and it keeps me on the jump about this time of the morning. I caught a young one. And he started to dance a step of the Irish Horn pipe, as he waved his cane for a carriage to cross in safety."

RANCH HOME BURNS IN WESTERN STATE

Residence of W. J. Hilt, Former Janesville Man, Was Subject To Flames On March 20th.

W. J. Hilt, formerly of this city, and now of Sun River, Montana, a small village thirty miles from Great Falls, had the misfortune of losing his ranch residence by fire on the evening of March 20th. By the time help was reached from a farm two miles away, the flames had advanced to a total loss to the property. The neighbors succeeded, however, in confining the flames to the residence alone, thus saving the stacks and farm buildings. The occupants of the house, including Mrs. Hilt and four children, the all under nine years of age, escaped with just what clothing they had on. Mr. Hilt was in the east at the time of the fire, and has been working on the new National bank building in this city, for the past week. The loss is estimated by Mr. Hilt, to be $12,000, with no insurance. There were three horses and one cow wintered in the barns, which were saved.

TO PUBLISH DIARY OF J. LLOYD JONES

Army Reminiscences of Former Janesville Man Are Important Contribution to Civil War Literature.

Janesville friends of Jenkin Lloyd Jones, former pastor of All Souls church in this city, now a prominent Chicago clergyman and social worker, has given for publication his notes and diary written during his term of service in the civil war.

The Rev. Jones spent the years of his life from 1862 to 1865 as a private in the ranks of the Sixth Wisconsin Battery of Artillery. The diary of his army life and observations which the young soldier kept with conscientious care during these three most momentous years in the life of the nation was secured for publication some time since by the Wisconsin History Commission, and is now about to be issued.

The publication of the Artilleryman's Diary constitutes an interesting and important contribution to the literature of the civil war. It is a class of men ever went to the making of an army than the soldiers who wore the blue and the grey. Readers of the Diary and those familiar with its author's later career will alike agree that no better soldier fought on either side in the civil war than the high-minded young Welsh-American who at the age of eighteen, at the behest of conscience, "stern daughter of the voice of God," enlisted in the Sixth Wisconsin Battery.

Finally, the Diary is valuable because, to use the author's own words in speaking of it, "it offers a typical case—a small cross section of the army that freed the slave and saved the Union." It presents an unfinished photograph, taken on the spot from day to day, of the camp, the march, and the battlefield. It takes the reader from the excitement of the battle-charge to the hardy soldier of the march to the incidence of winter quarters, from the crowded camp saloon to the equally crowded soldier's church. In short, it presents a complete picture of the soldier's life from day to day.

The world appears with peculiar fitness at the present time. This is the semi-centennial, and this season of the year, when Sherman began his campaign against Atlanta which was to cut the confederacy in twain, and when Grant was beginning the bloody Wilderness campaign which eventually in the surrender of Lee and the conclusion of the war.

TWO MEN ARE SENTENCED ON DRUNKENNESS CHARGE; ONE PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Three drunks were arraigned before Judge Harry L. Maxfield this morning, two of them pleading guilty, receiving sentences, and the other having his examination set for three-thirty this afternoon on his plea of not guilty to the charges.

James Neilson, a farm hand residing in the town of Rock, admitted to the court that when he was arrested on Main street last night he was intoxicated, and Judge Maxfield gave him a ten day sentence in default of a fine amounting to eleven dollars. John Carroll, who has been in court several times, and in September Judge Maxfield dismissed action against him on his plea of keeping sober and at work, was given twenty days, not being able to pay a twenty dollar fine. Carroll admitted that he had been drinking.

and explained his marred features as a result of a grudge fight which he had on Sunday.

Jerry Murphy declared that if plead guilty to the charges he would be false to his honor and after setting his bonds at one hundred dollars set his examination at three thirty this afternoon. Complaint had been made that he was causing trouble at his home.

LARGE NUMBER WILL COMPETE IN ORATORY

High School Contest This Month Will Be Preceded by Several Elimination Contests.

Because of the introduction of the new class in oral English and public speaking at the high school last September, under the direction of Prof. J. T. Shearor, material for the oratorical contest this month has taken a boost of at least four hundred percent. Instead of only six entering the elimination contest, as was the case last spring, as many as thirty are expected to enter, with prospects of many more learning speeches before long.

Prof. Shearor has asked every member of his class to participate in the contest, and in that way he feels that he can judge in a pretty good way the past work and progress of the boys in their class during the past winter. Outsiders are going to enter the contest, and keen interest will be in full swing within another week.

Names of those desiring to enter the declamation and poetry contests will be taken soon, and as the extempore speakers have already been selected for the contest, the big event of the year will have been completely formulated the latter part of next week, with the date also decided upon.

ARREST WOMAN ON EDGERTON WARRANT

Lillian Cook To Have Hearing Before Edgerton Justice Court—Arrested by Officer Fanning.

Lillian Cook, who is alleged to have been the keeper of the house raided by the police on the river road late Sunday night, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Patrick Fanning as she was about to board a passenger train to leave the city. This morning she was taken to Edgerton, under the orders of District Attorney Dunwiddie where she will be given a hearing on a warrant for her arrest issued last December when she was a resident of Indian Ford.

When arraigned before Justice Fred W. Jensen in the Edgerton court December 23rd, she was not brought to trial as the court made the agreement that she pay the costs of the hearing and leave Rock county. Because of the evidence that has been gathered against her by the state for running a house of prostitution at Indian Ford the authorities will press those charges against her, and if Justice Jensen holds her on the Edgerton warrant she will be brought before Judge Maxfield in the Janesville municipal court for trial. Others implicated in the escape from the river road house, are also wanted by the local police.

Combination Eye-shade and Fan for Midsummer Use.

A day-day comfort is reflected in the combined sun shade and fan which has been recently patented by a resident of St. Louis, Mo., and which is shown in the accompanying cut. The invention referred to above is particularly a fan which is so designed as to be readily attached to the brim of the

The strip of wood extending through the center of the fan which is necessary to give it the required rigidity and also to act as a handle, has a soft metal clip secured to it and by the means of this the fan may be secured at any angle and at any point of the brim so as to effectually shield the face.

NEW STONE CRUSHER TO BE GIVEN TRIAL

NEW ROAD BUILDING MACHINERY WILL BE TESTED IN VICINITY OF EVANSVILLE.

TOWNSHIPS RETRENCH

New States at Caucuses Taken as Indication That Many State Aid Petitions Will Be Abandoned.

The new stone and gravel crushing machine which was ordered by bid by the road committee of the county board several weeks ago, will be received at Janesville within a few days as Highway Commissioner C. E. Moore has received the bill of lading from the Good Roads Machinery company of Port Wayne, Ind., of which the crusher was ordered.

Mr. Moore intends to try out the crusher at once on some work in the town of Union, east of Evansville, and also in the town of Porter. If the work is successful and the machine is entirely satisfactory three other crushers will be ordered at once and will be used in building state aid highways in the county this summer.

It is expected that the crushers will make available a large quantity of road building material at a price which is useless and thus will lessen the expense of hauling. In some localities the best gravel which can be used without crushing is entirely exhausted, or else it is too far from the scene of road building operations. With the crusher new pits of coarser gravel and stone can be opened, which will mean much in the interest of road building economy.

With $105,000 worth of new road construction outlined for the coming season, Commissioner Moore foresees an unusually busy season. Many of the townships will seek to start the work as soon as the weather will permit this spring, but the highway commissioner will guard against starting too many jobs at once.

"I understand that there are several towns in the county where an entirely new set of officials has been elected at township caucuses," said Mr. Moore. "I understand that one object in these wholesale changes has been to eliminate the township state highway aid appropriations. Consequently, I take it that there will be five or six townships in the county that will not be expected to state aid money to be expended in 1915."

NOW IS THE TIME TO PRUNE APPLE TREES

ALLEN B. WEST DECLARES ROCK COUNTY FARMER SHOULD GET BUSY.

TELLS WHAT TO PRUNE

It May Be Necessary to Cut Off Branches After A Year Has Passed.

(By Allen B. West.)
Right now is the best time for the Rock County farmer to prune his fruit trees unless they have been pruned within the year. First, because while trees may be pruned at any time the best results are obtained from pruning during the downward period, and the wounds made in pruning heal quickly, and the late winter or early spring than in the fall. Second, because the hours of daylight are now sufficient to permit of such work, and there is not likely to be time for it after work on the land begins.

Why Prune?
Experience has shown that pruning aids in maintaining the vigor of the tree and gives a better product of fruit. Pruning also helps in shaping the tree so that it may be easily handled in spraying and picking.

What To Prune.
All apple trees should be pruned annually to insure results. Trees when set should be pruned to establish correct shape—short and stocky rather than long and willowy. It will readily be seen that a short stocky tree is easier to pick and to spray than a tall one. For the same reason one with an open rather than a close head is desirable. Slender willowy branches bending under the weight of fruit are apt to split off and injure the tree. Such branches will not so the early pruning of a tree to bring into correct shape is most important. The ideal pruning of an apple tree when set will leave from three to five branches evenly distributed about the trunk, and other along the trunk of the tree beginning at eighteen inches from the ground and extending to three feet. The branches and top should be cut back to about one-third to two-thirds of the original length.

Pruning the Second Year.
During the first year after planting branches have been forming on the main branches that were left at first pruning. In some cases there will be too many of these and enough should be cut away to leave only two or three, well distributed on the main branches, and quite near the base so as to keep the tree compact and radiation strong. Branches growing in to the center had best be removed now as the head may be thickened up later on. Those branches that are left should be shortened as a rule to two-thirds the last season's growth unless they are already short and stocky.

In cutting off these branches the position of the buds should be noted. If it is desirable to have a branch grow out from the tree cut just above a bud, selecting a good strong one on the outside of the branch; if it is desirable to fill in, an open space cut should be made just above the buds toward the open space. If the branches have a tendency to grow too upright, cut just above a bud on the outer or lower side. This is an important matter in directing the shape of the tree in early pruning. Care should be taken however to cut so that the branch will project slightly above the bud in order to protect it, cutting with a good sharp knife diagonally across the bud and about level with it, and coming out on the other side about an eighth of an inch above the top of the bud.

Pruning After the Second Year.
The first and second year's pruning should determine the frame work of the tree in so far as it may be done artificially. So the subsequent pruning will consist almost entirely in removing the superfluous shoots and cutting back the new growth which is to be left. Branches that rub or are inclined to form bad crotches should be removed.

The ideal of an open head to let in the sunlight and air and facilitate spraying should be kept in mind and not too many branches allowed to grow into the center of the tree.

Pruning Neglected Trees.
If pruning has not been done each year the tree has been neglected. How much so depends on the number of years it has been allowed to grow according to its own haphazard fashion. If it has been a number of years the top is likely to resemble a brush heap and it is a temptation to get at it and clear it out thoroughly.

Those who have tried it however find that it is best not to remove all this superfluous growth at once, but to do the work gradually. The first year all the dead wood should be carefully removed and the water sprouts and suckers that have grown up on the main branches should be cut out. If these are very numerous this is about all that should be done during the first year's pruning, for if too much is cut away the tree is forced into a heavy top growth and the second state of the tree is nearly as bad as the first. If, however, there are not many water sprouts, the branches that most seriously interfere with each other should be removed. The following year the water sprouts should be removed as before and more of the large branches to open up the head. It is not, however, advisable to remove many large branches, as this is likely to leave large openings in the tree. If the tree has begun to make much growth at the ends of the branches these twigs should be headed in as in the regular pruning.

Tools for Pruning.
For young trees or trees pruned every year, a strong knife and small hand shears are all the tools necessary, until the tree gets so tall a pole pruner will be needed for heading in the top branches.

The tools should always be sharp so as to have a clean wound. In the case of trees that have been neglected so that large branches are to be removed, it will be necessary to use a saw. There is danger here of the branch breaking down and splitting into a ragged, pulling on bark. To avoid this it is well to leave the branch off a little distance from the trunk or main branch, by sawing first one-third or one-half through from the under side and finishing by sawing from above. This leaves a stub which should be removed by sawing as close to trunk as possible, making the cut parallel to the part from which the branch is removed.

Care of Wounds.
Rough wounds, being liable to heat than smooth ones, there is greater danger of infection. If the bark has been torn around the edges of the wound it should be cut back to sound bark. Wounds half an inch or more in diameter should be treated by any material that is adhesive and will protect the wood by keeping out moisture and fungi.

The best and cheapest material and the most easily applied is white lead. It should be thick so as to give a heavy coat. Other materials that are used are grafting wax and pine tar, neither one of which is as satisfactory. If paint is used instead of white lead, it should be pure lead paint, as poisonous materials are injurious to the tree.

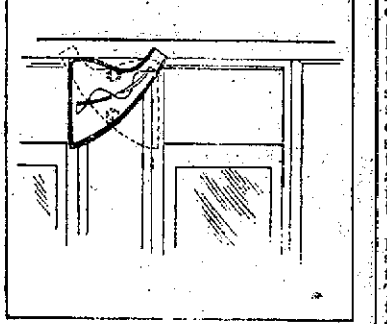

To sum up:
First—Prune annually and systematically.
Second—Use sharp tools.
Third—Leave clean wounds, well protected if large.

Wisconsin Bulletin No. 207 on "The Management of a Bearing Orchard" is a good one to possess.

SUGGESTION MADE AS TO IRISH POTATOES

Seed Potatoes Discussed by the Department of Agriculture at Washington.

This is the season of the year when the farmer should pay particular attention to seed potatoes, cautions the department of agriculture, and the use of high grade seed would increase the returns from the potato crop of the country by many millions of dollars. A conservative estimate of the increase that might be expected from the use of high-grade seed is certainly not less than 10 per cent. Such an increase based on the average production of the past five years would amount to over $4,000,000,000, having an approximate value of $21,000,000. Of the many causes which operate to produce a low average potato yield in this country, pure seed is an important one. The farmer, however, pays too little attention to his seed potatoes.

The European growers, especially those of Great Britain and Germany, pay very strict attention to the quality and quantity of seed they use. This has led to the differentiation of the potato industry into seed and crop specialties. The seed specialist makes a business of producing high-quality seed, while the crop specialist produces a high-grade table potato. No such differentiation, at least to the same extent, occurs in this country. While it is true that in certain sections there is a well-developed seed potato growing industry, but comparatively few growers in these sections are paying sufficient attention to the elimination of diseased and unproductive strains, or to keeping the variety grown free from mixture with other varieties.

By far the simplest and most promising means of developing high-grade seed potatoes is that of the tuber-unit and hill selection method. The former consists in selecting from the seed bin before planting time a considerable number of the most perfectly shaped tubers of from 6 to 8 ounces in weight. When these tubers are quartered, as dropped into four as nearly equal parts as possible. This is done by splitting the bud-eye cluster in each direction from seed to stem and to distance from the bud. Pieces of each tuber are dropped consecutively in the row at a distance of from 16 to 12 inches apart in the furrow. All tubers showing discoloration, or the least other evidence of disease should be rejected.

By allowing an additional space between each set of four, the four plants from each tuber are definitely separated from adjacent ones, and the grower can readily observe any variation in vigor and uniformity between the units planted. This method also enables him to detect any mixture that may occur in the variety. By digging time the product of each unit is separately harvested, and a further selection made from the marked units of all those which most nearly approach the ideal of size, shape and smoothness desired. The selected tubers should be numbered with both field and unit numbers and separately placed in small sacks. From each of the units retained, ten of the best tubers should be selected for the next season's planting. It is desirable to maintain the study of each selection on the tuber-unit basis the following season because it permits a more accurate comparison of the behavior of each.

The hill-selection method consists in marking the most promising plants during the growing season. At harvesting time the tubers which give greatest promise, keep the progeny of each hill separate, and take the same data as outlined for the tuber-unit. Plant on the tuber-unit basis the following season. For sake of uniformity, definite number of tubers—five or more—should be planted from each hill selection. From this point on the methods giving the tuber-unit work should be followed.

The only requirements for the successful practice of the two methods of seed selections are a reasonable degree of painstaking effort on the part of the grower, some 12-inch garden labels, a small pair of balances, a sufficient number of suitable small sacks and a safe place in which to store the selected tubers until required by the next season's planting. In addition to this, the grower should have a breeding plot in which each season's selections can be developed up to the point of field-planting stock.

The selections of breeding plot need not necessarily be divorced from the general field plot. In most cases it can be more conveniently handled if it is a part of the regular field. All that is required is to set aside as many rows as may be required to plant the selected tubers. These should be preferably on one side of the field so that they can be more readily observed. The planting furrows may be open, and a fertilizer distributed with the potato planter by removing the disks and setting the plow a trifle deeper. If a plow is used in covering, care should be exercised to avoid displacing the seed pieces.

John Jacob Rogers, who succeeded Bulter Ames in congress from the Fifth Massachusetts district, is a regular Republican and believes in the preservation of the G. O. Mr. Rogers comes from the city of Lowell, which represents nearly one-half of his district. He is a member of an old New England family and is an honor graduate of Harvard.

HEAD YOURSELF TO SLEEP

Luxurious Manner of Winding the God of Sleep.

According to the view point of many persons, the top notch of luxurious ease is to read in bed. With one's knees propped up to one's chin and a good book, the scheme is to read until overcome by the influence of Morpheus himself and then drop off to sleep with no more preparation than turning off the light by means of a button at one's finger's ends.

This condition of comfort has been still more improved by the recent invention of a bookrack which holds the volume at just the right point and at the proper angle, so that all the reader has to do, under these circumstances, is to keep the eyes open. This rack consists of an adjustable frame to be secured to the bed and supporting a panel of glass. The book is placed upon this panel of glass and is held in position by a cord which the reader finds it necessary to disturb himself is when it is necessary to turn over a leaf.

As to Love.
"Is love nice?" one little girl questioned another. "It depends," was the answer, given by a member of a large family of older brothers and sisters, "it's nice when you love your mother, but when you love other young men and women it's hard on the rest of the family."

WITH BIG LEADERS IN HOUSE AGAINST HIM, PRESIDENT STILL HOLDS RANK AND FILE; TOLLS FIGHT SHOWS WILSON'S POWER

A most significant fact in connection with the fight for the repeal of the tolls exemption clause in the lower house of congress was the opposition to President Wilson of practically all the recognized leaders in congress, including Speaker Champ Clark and floor leader Oscar W. Underwood, Democrats, Progressive floor leader Victor Murdock and Republican floor leader James R. Mann. President Wilson's triumph in the house seems to indicate that he is more powerful than all the congressional leaders combined.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

TRYING TO UNDERSTAND.

"O NE ought neither to laugh nor carp at, exalt nor curse, a human being's actions, but only to try to understand them."—Spinoza.

We were talking about a very nervous, exasperating woman the other day. We had been comparing notes on her maddening little ways which made her as difficult to live with as if she had been possessed of actual vices—as the world usually employs that word. She had waxed quite indignant over the matter, when the woman who is the worst sufferer from the annoying one brought us to a standstill by saying, "Oh, well, I guess we ought to be sorry for her instead of scolding about her. She must suffer, herself; and besides I don't know but what I would have been worse if I had been born with her disposition."

That is a thought worth pausing over, isn't it? I believe I have said something along the same line more than once before, but I can't make it too emphatic. I can't try too hard to make you take it into your life as a practical, working conviction, that we have no right to judge the actions of others because we cannot tell what we might have been or done if we had been handicapped as they were.

The most ludicrous, the most exasperating, the most degraded actions of every human being have definite causes. To criticize these actions, to be angry at their authors without fully understanding these causes is absurd.

Suppose your washerwoman fails to bring back your clean clothes on time and you suspect that she has been using your last week's pay to get drunk upon, what is your feeling? Probably that of annoyance at the inconvenience, and hot indignation at her. But what right have you to be indignant?

What do you understand of the deadly monotony of her life, the cravings of her ill fed body, and the weakness of her unaided mind? If you could realize what these things mean you might be indignant, if you still wanted to be. But would you? Probably not.

Suppose the woman next door childishly resigns from the missionary society because her meeting was not well attended. Have you a right to laugh at her? Not unless you can thoroughly enter into the conditions which caused such an act, the narrowness of outlook, the pettiness of soul, the lack of better standards of conduct; and can still want to laugh.

Of course no one can say absolutely that another human being is or is not making the best he possibly could out of his equipment. That must be left to the infinite intelligence. To return to Spinoza, "not to laugh or carp at, exalt nor curse, but only to try to understand."

And with that effort will surely come the divine gift of sympathy and we shall no longer be eager to judge.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

BE WISE, be cheerful, bright and gay, leave to the fool his folly, and let your motto be "Cheer up," your rule of life, "Be jolly."

DISHES FOR AFTERNOON RECEPTIONS.

When planning any entertainment in which the food is a chief feature, the appearance as well as the tempting flavor is equally important.

Layer Sandwiches.—Have loaves of Graham or whole wheat and white bread two days old. Trim off the crust and save for the countless dishes which call for bread crumbs. Cut a slice and spread the end of the loaf with softened butter; cut in water-like slices until all is prepared. Have ready some chopped and seasoned ham and a few finely chopped nuts or any two kinds of filling desired, but be sure that they harmonize. On a slice of the buttered bread put a layer of one filling and a layer of the other on the white bread, alternating with the white and brown until a half dozen slices are placed together. Press, to make firm, and cut in slices like layer cake, to serve.

Roasted Almond Sandwiches.—Prepare the almonds at home by blanching—that is, boiling in water two minutes then drop in cold water and remove the brown skins. Dry well and cook until brown in a little olive oil; salt well and chop fine. Mix with either mayonnaise dressing or whipped cream, seasoned with paprika. Spread on water-like slices of white bread which has been buttered. Maple sugar grated and mixed with cream and chopped almonds makes another delicious filling for sandwiches.

Small Charlottes.—For these take three-quarters of a package of gelatin, one cup of powdered sugar, two quarts and a half of thick cream, two tablespoonsful of vanilla, one-third of a cup of orange juice and three dozen lady fingers. Split the lady fingers and cut each piece in lengths to fit around the sides of paper cases or molds. Put a piece in the bottom of each mold. Have ready chopped nuts and candied cherries or fresh strawberries for garnishing. Soak the gelatin in cold water and whip the cream; add the sugar to the cream, strain in the dissolved gelatin and stir until it begins to thicken, then add vanilla and orange juice. When very thick, fill cases.

Before serving, sprinkle with chopped pistachio nuts and garnish with cherries or strawberries. These forms will hold their shape when turned out on the serving plate, and will serve 25 people.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE GIRLS TAUGHT INFANT HYGIENE IN CLEVELAND CENTERS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Cleveland, O., April 1.—Students of twenty-three domestic science school centers here today took up the study of infant hygiene as part of the city's summer campaign against infant mortality.

Nurses from the Municipal Infant Dispensary are aiding domestic science instructors in teaching eight grade girls the sewing of sanitary outfits for needy babies; washing, dressing and feeding babies and the general care of infants. The subject today became a regular part of the school-course for the first time.

An Everyday Cake

Here is a simple and inexpensive cake that can be varied in many ways with different frostings and icings. It looks a little like a cake in a tube pan, but will be equally as good baked in a square loaf.

K C Gold Cake

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.

1 cup butter; 1 cup sugar; yolks of 4 eggs, beaten light; 1 cup flour, less 2 level tablespoonsful; 2 level teaspoonsful K.C. Baking Powder; 1 cup milk; grated rind of 1 orange.

Sift flour and baking powder together three times; cream butter and sugar; beat yolks of eggs, add these to creamed mixture, and lastly add the moisture and flour after stirring, beating, batter until smooth. Gold Cake can only be made successfully by beating yolks of eggs, very, very creamy and light lemon colored, using a rotary beater.

The rotary beater is the only beater that will do justice to the yolks of eggs. The beating kills all egg taste and improves the texture of the cake.

Cocoanut Frosting
Beat the whites of 2 eggs dry; gradually beat in half a cup of sifted confectioner's sugar and continue the beating until the frosting is smooth, thick and glossy; then beat in grated cocoanut, fresh or prepared, and spread upon the cake. This frosting is made thick by beating rather than by sugar.

Save this recipe. You will want to use it frequently. Or better, send us the colored certificate packed in each 25-cent can of K.C. Baking Powder and we will mail you "The Cook's Book," containing this and 29 other baking recipes equally good—all by Mrs. Hill. Jacques Mfg. Co., Chicago.

Undoubtedly a Tip.

"Was it a genuine tip Rawson gave you on the stock market?" "I guess it was; it made me lose my balance."

Women Worth While

MRS. FLORENCE A. DONNELLEY.
By Selene Armstrong Harmon.
"Being a congressman's secretary?" reiterated Mrs. Florence A. Donnelley after her interviewer. "Well, I should say there is interesting work and plenty of it, by the way, waiting for the woman who goes looking for work in earnest."

And Mrs. Donnelley knows, if any one does. She could give, but she won't, of course, all the inside information that is to be had concerning the ups and downs, the advantages and drawbacks, that are connected with the work. With the exception of Miss Agnes T. Wilson, daughter of the secretary of labor William B. Wilson, who was her father's secretary when the latter held the chairmanship of the labor committee of the lower house, Mrs. Donnelley is one of the few women who have made a noteworthy and constructive success out of such work. She has been for twenty-two years secretary and clerk to Representative James R. Mann, minority leader in the house of representatives. She began her business career in his law office in Chicago, where she acquired some valuable knowledge of legal forms and terms. For ten years past she has been secretary to Mr. Mann in his capacity as representative. After which term of service, he says of her:

"She is the most efficient office woman I ever saw. She runs the office, and she used to run the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. She knows her work and I know mine. Sometimes we go for days without exchanging a dozen words, but I find her completed work on my table just the same."

"You ask me what I consider the most important requisites of a woman's success in holding the secretaryship to a public man," says Mrs. Donnelley. "I can answer that and industry are main requirements. But above all these I would place a genuine enthusiasm for, and interest in, the work itself. Unless a woman is sufficiently interested in the work, she cannot hope really to learn it, for as you know it takes both concentration and effort for a woman to learn politics."

In this connection, it is a fact worthy of note that Mrs. Donnelley herself is so interested in national issues that she rarely lets a day pass without spending some little time at least in listening to the proceedings on the floor of the house. She is probably as well informed as any man in congress, and a great deal more so than some, on matters pertaining to federal legislation.

Mrs. Donnelley supervises the work of two assistants. One of the incidental features of her work has been superintending the compiling and filing for reference of twenty six thousand names and addresses of constituents who have written letters to their representative, together with the nature of the request each letter contained. Mrs. Donnelley acted as clerk to the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, and also to the committee on elections. No. 1 while Mr. Mann held the chairmanships of these committees. An idea of the labor involved in such clerkships may be had from the fact that of 300 laws enacted by the house during a single session, 25 per cent of the above named committees.

Mrs. Donnelley has herself drawn many bills. She has a discrimination that has enabled her to relieve Mr. Mann to a great extent of the burdens of a large and promiscuous correspondence. Also, she can, with tact and good humor turn away many a bore, crank, and idle talker without admitting these to the minority leader's private office, and yet without offending them. If this last accomplishment is not a supreme test of her fitness for her present work, what would be?

Heart and Home Problems

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS.
Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl eighteen years of age. One night my girl friend and I were on the train and there was an awfully pretty conductor on it, whom I took a liking to the minute I saw him. Every time I would look at him he would be looking at me and smiling. Now Mrs. Thompson, as I like this conductor awfully well and would like to get an introduction to him, and as I do not know any of his friends, I don't know how I will get introduced to him. So will you please give me a little advice how to meet and gain his love?

BROWN EYES.
My dear girl, you may be sure that if your conductor is a pretty man he is also a flirt. He also is very probably married and wouldn't give up his wife for any fifty little girl he sees on the train—no, not even if that girl is foolish enough to think she is dreadfully in love with him. Much he would probably flirt with her as much as she likes. Young and good-looking conductors have a habit of doing things like that, and you may be sure you are not the first girl he has smiled at, and maybe you only imagined the smile.

Please don't run after him, my dear. So many girls are making themselves cheap that way—and the men always know it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I had my feet frosted sometime ago. I am bothered with festering chilblains. What is your advice in this matter? READER.

I should think feet in such a condition should be treated by a doctor. Bathing chilblained feet in peroxide serving will thicken it like magic and the flavor of vinegar will not be noticeable.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
After first removing the cork from your bottle of glue, do not use it again, but insert in its place the stopper of an old candle. It will not stick and the glue cannot spill. If the soup is too salty, add grated raw potato and cook a few minutes longer. If pea or bean soup is too thin, a spoonful of vinegar added just before serving will thicken it like magic and the flavor of vinegar will not be noticeable.

ARBOR DAY ADVISE BY FEDERAL EXPERT; NEED SHADE TREES

Hardy Trees Should Be Planted in Populated Districts And Should Be National Product.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, April 1.—Three spadeful of rich, pulverized earth will do more to make a young tree grow than a thirty-minute Arbor Day address by the president of the school board and a patriotic anthem by the senior class according to Dr. Furman L. Mulford today, tree expert for the Department of Agriculture. Not that Dr. Mulford would abbreviate the ceremonies attending upon Arbor Day planting today, but because they do not mean much unless the trees planted receive proper and constant care. For what the fourth of July is to the Water and Navy Departments and what Labor Day is to the Department of Labor, Arbor Day is to the Department of Agriculture.

While the Forestry Bureau has concerned itself primarily with trees from a standpoint of the timber supply, Dr. Mulford has been making a study of trees best adapted for streets and cities generally. And nobody is more interested than he in what Arbor Day signifies or how trees should be chosen and reared. "We need trees most where our population is the thickest, and some trees, like some people, are adapted to such a life," said Dr. Mulford. "For street or school yard planting one of the first considerations is a hardy tree, that can find nourishment under brick pavements or granite walks. It must be one that branches high from the ground, and ought to be native to the country and climate. America has the prettiest native trees and shrubs in the world and it is true patriotism to recognize them."

For southern states one of the prettiest and best of shade trees is the laurel oak, and there will be thousands of them planted today. It is almost an evergreen and is a quick growing tree. The willow oak is another. A little farther north the red oak is one of the most desirable, and in many places the swamp maple grows well, though this latter tree does not thrive well in crowded cities. Nothing, however, is prettier than the American elm when it reaches the majesty of its maturity and I do not believe it will ever cease to be a favorite. One thing against it, though, is the elm beetle, a pest which is spreading and which will kill some of our most beautiful trees unless spraying is consistently practiced. China berry trees, abundant in the south, and box elders, native to a score of states, are quick growing but they reach maturity too soon and begin to go to seed early.

"What is the reason so many 'Arbor Day' trees die?" Dr. Mulford was asked. "Usually lack of protection, and after lack of care in planting," he was answered. "When the new tree begins to put out tender rootlets a child brushing against it, or inspecting it too closely will break them off and it dies. Or stock will nip off the new leaves and shoots and the result is the same. The best way around the tree would prevent this. Then, often wild trees are too big when transplanted. Such trees have usually only a few long roots and so many of them are left in the ground, that the large trunk cannot be nourished by the remainder. With nursery trees the larger they are the better it is, for they have a lot of small roots that do not have to be cut off."

"Fruit trees are seldom a success as shade trees, either along a street or road or in a yard. In the first place their branches are too low and unless carefully pruned their shape is irregular. Then they are subject to so many pests that unless constant care is given them they will not bear a harvest of fruit a season. On the other hand, nut trees are usually very hardy and add much to the landscape. Pecan, chestnut, walnut and shaggy bark hickory are some of the more popular varieties. Strangely enough the first Arbor Day was observed in Nebraska which has fewer natural trees than any other state. This was in 1872, and Kansas was the second to observe the day, falling into line in 1875. Incidentally, Kansas ranks next to Nebraska in dearth of trees. The Arbor Day idea originated with J. Sterling Morton, a Nebraskan who was appointed secretary of Agriculture by President Cleveland. Now every state in the Union recognizes the day and New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin and others have gotten out extension Arbor Day booklets giving information concerning trees, birds, and insects, and most of them even contain appropriate songs and poems for Arbor Day programs."

MAKES LAMB-LIKE EXIT: IT WAS ALSO TEARFUL

The old adage "in like a lion, out like a lamb," for March, proved true this year, although the exit was a tearful one. Yesterday was a sunless, rainy, drizzly day, but it was rather more lamblike than lionlike if the temperature is taken into consideration.

On the night of Feb. 28 and the early morning of March 1, Janesville experienced one of the worst blizzards of the winter, and the month can truly be said to have been ushered in like a lion.

"LABORING MEN WANTED"

Laboring men you are wanted to consider carefully the question of license or no-license. This is to be voted on at the coming election Tuesday, April 7th.

Will voting no-license throw men out of employment? Three million Americans are hunting employment today. Why? The liquor traffic has tied up one billion dollars in an industry which pays $90 in wages for every million dollars invested, while all other industries are paying an average of $450 wages for every million dollars invested in capital.

Dr. Carroll D. Wright, chief of the labor bureau at Washington, says:

"It requires three thousand five hundred and four dollars capital to employ one man in the making of liquor. That amount of capital would employ 8.4 men in making brick or tile; 8.6 men in making boots and shoes; in all building trades it would employ 9.7 men. If the capital now engaged in the building trades were to be turned into the manufacture of beer and whisky, eight out of every nine men would be thrown out of employment."

THIS BEING TRUE IS IT NOT TO THE INTEREST OF EVERY LABORING MAN TO VOTE NO-LICENSE?

While one dollar is being spent for bread and flour 55¢ are being spent for drink.

While one dollar is being spent for education ten dollars go for drink.

While one dollar is being spent for religion fifteen dollars are being spent for drink. There is certainly an awakening sentiment among laboring men touching the influence of drink, and of the harmful effect of the saloon.

In November, 1909, the International Convention of the Federation of Labor was held in Toronto.

Here at one of the greatest rallies of union labor ever held, four thousand men applauded a most vigorous arraignment of the liquor traffic, and strongly expressed their sympathy with the temperance cause.

READ WHAT PROMINENT LABOR LEADERS SAY:

President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, says; "The time has come when the saloon and the labor movement must be divorced."

John Burns, the English labor leader, says; "Workingmen ask me to make a new heaven and a new earth for them. They can make them for themselves by saving the $15,000,000 spent in drink and gambling each week."

Tom Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, says; "Because the Liquor traffic tends to enslave the people and make them satisfied with improper conditions and keeps them ignorant, the laborers of the trades union movement are called upon to fight the saloon."

Laboring man if the saloon makes you richer or better, if it keeps or helps your families, then support it.

If It Does Not, Then Vote Against It.

John F. Cunnane, Union Machinist of Chicago, said; "Both workingmen and farmers suffer when money is spent for drink. Workingmen, vote against your worst enemy, the saloon. When the workingmen down the whisky trust and the beer trust then they will be able to get their rights. No one can claim that the saloon is a moral institution. Facts prove that it is an enormous financial loss as well as a moral degradation, for a community to maintain it."

R. F. Trafelich, President of the National Labor Union and Eight Hour League, says; "The use of liquor and its influence have done more to darken laborers' homes, dwarf its energies and chain it hand and foot to the wheels of corporate aggression than all other influences combined."

The United Mine Workers' Journal says; "We object to the labor movement being tied to the tail of the Brewers' kite or forming any entangling alliances with the liquor traffic. We must steer labor's craft as far away from the saloon as possible, not draw it closer. Labor uplifts, liquor keeps us down."
